

Using technology to combat illiteracy and improve lives

Dear Jennifer,

I want to help the Bailey Institute combat illiteracy and give challenged youth the chance for a better life. Make me a part of this success story.

Enclosed is my contribution to support the Bailey Institute's Technology-Drive Education Program (TDEP), to combat illiteracy using technology.

Technology is the 21st century's gift to the poor. Help us use it to combat illiteracy

"I was afraid of the computer because I had never used one. My teacher helped me master the computer in two weeks and I began working at mathematics and English on the computer. I now feel confident I can be successful."
